Comcast to carry broadcaster on Channel 19 in its Western Massachusetts market

SANTA MONICA, CALIFORNIA – July 10, 2006 – Entravision Communications Corporation (NYSE: EVC) announced today that it has launched WHTX-TV UNIVISION Channel 43 on the Comcast Cable system serving Western Massachusetts, replacing Univision’s basic national network feed. The local WHTX-TV UNIVISION Channel 43 is being aired on Comcast cable channel 19.

“The launch of WHTX-TV UNIVISION Channel 43 on the local Comcast Cable system brings substantial value to Springfield-Holyoke’s Hispanic cable viewers,” said Ulysses Arrigoitia, General Manger of WHTX-TV, and WUVN-TV and WUTH-TV serving the Hartford, Connecticut, market. “These viewers now have one destination for Spanish-language local and regional news with “Noticias Nueva Inglaterra” (New England News), as well as Univision’s popular programming. We are excited to bring this expanded programming offering to Comcast customers and remain committed to serving our local communities with the best Spanish-language programming.”

“Comcast is committed to meeting the diverse and unique programming interests of our customers and are pleased to include WHTX-TV Univision Channel 43 in the channel lineup for Western Massachusetts,” said Tony Speller, Vice President of Comcast’s Connecticut-Western Massachusetts Region.

In addition to being available on Comcast Channel 19, WHTX-TV UNIVISION Channel 43 is available via free-over-the-air broadcast on Channel 43. The Comcast Cable system serving Western Massachusetts reaches over 130,000 households.
